Acknowledgment of the Land

As the Spirit moves through this place, touching our hearts, and calling us into loving relationship, we pause to acknowledge that we gather on unceded Anishinaabe and Algonquin territory - land and waters taken without consent or fair compensation - land and waters that hold a history and tell a story that needs to be given voice, heard, and respected. We acknowledge and give thanks for the First Peoples of the past who lived on and loved this land, travelled its waterways, and breathed its air before us and for those who are present among us now.
